

- 24 -

A B S T R A C T

A disposable diaper is formed in one of front and rear waist regions with first wings which are elastically stretchable in a waist-surrounding direction and these first wings are provided on respective body facing surfaces with first fastener means. The other waist region is provided on its undergarment facing surface with, in addition to second fastener means, anti-slip zones exhibiting a desired average kinetic frictional force relative to the body facing surface of the first wings.